

What's the Difference?

	Scholarly Activity Tool	UP Authors Bibliography	Pilot Scholars
Purpose	Internal tool for faculty to self-report scholarly activity and research in one place.	Compilation of faculty, staff and student publications featured at the Annual UP Authors Reception in October.	Growing database containing full text of scholarly and creative works by UP-affiliated authors.  Authors must retain the right to post a work in a repository for it to be included. Library staff can help with determining your rights, including contacting publishers to ask for permission.
Date Started	2013	2009	2014
Managed By	Office of the Provost	Clark Library	Clark Library
Public Product	A Community of Scholars report (published annually in early Fall)	Bibliography available through the Clark Library website. Copies of the publications are also featured at the Reception.	The Pilot Scholars database, which is part of a searchable network of institutional repositories.
Audience	UP Community; people interested in learning about the University, donors, etc.	UP Community	UP Community; scholars and researchers from anywhere
Access	Direct access is restricted to faculty (i.e., to their individual profile through PilotsUP portal) and to the Office of the Provost.	Bibliography is available to anyone through the Clark Library website.  Direct access to some of the linked content is restricted to current UP faculty, students, and staff when the items are available within the Library's subscription databases or through Summit/UP ILLiad.	Access available to anyone.